EITC the Basics/Challenges with EITC

WHAT ARE THE CHALLENGES WITH EITC?

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is designed to help working families, but it is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.

As the number of ACEs increases: K. Hughes, M.A. Bellis, K.A. Hardcastle, et al., The effect of multiple adverse childhood experiences on health: a systematic review and meta-analysis Lancet Public Health, August 2017

The EITC is not the most effective means of supporting children. The credit is not worth much to those at risk for multiple ACEs who are struggling to make ends meet. The credit is also not available to those who are not able to work because of disabilities or health conditions. In addition, the credit is not available to those who are not able to work because of family responsibilities, such as caring for a sick family member or raising young children. This means that families with low incomes are not able to benefit from the credit.